Living Like an Artist

The Jan van Eyck Mirror together with Maastricht University and RWTH Aachen invite you to join the opening of the Living Like an Artist exhibition, preceded by a multilingual discussion about continuous talent development, fruitful aging, creative dwelling, and everlasting commitment.

Based on mature artists' lifestyle patterns and the way these correspond to the artists' habitats and vice versa, the research project Living Like an Artist emphasizes that one cannot retire from what one really is. The outcome of this project will be presented with scale models of artists' ideal households, a photo exhibition, a documentary, presentations, and discussions.

Offering a profound insight into the environments inhabited by artists who are in the later stages of their development, we encourage you to take part in applying and further developing the findings to a number of social categories. We invite you to join us in questioning the implications of competitiveness in the art world, and to contextualize Living Like an Artist within a fast-paced contemporary framework.
